11th Annual NYC Public School Survey

Schools Chancellor Carmen Fariña kicked off the 11th annual NYC School Survey of public school students, parents, and teachers. She said “The NYC School Survey is a research-based tool that is essential to the success of our schools, which need the feed back of our families, students, and teachers to thrive; I look forward to hearing from all members of the NYC’s educational community, as we work together to create equity and excellence in every school.” The NYC School Survey is one of the nation’s largest annual surveys and gathers feedback aligned to the research-based Framework for Great Schools from all members of the school community.

The 2017 NYC School Survey has been designed in partnership with the Research Alliance for NYC Schools, and continues to provide actionable information on school capacity that is aligned to the DOE’s research-based Framework for Great Schools. The survey collects information about a school’s capacity across six essential elements – Rigorous Instruction, Supportive Environment, Collaborative Teachers, Effective School Leadership, Strong Family-Community Ties, and Trust – that drive student achievement. Research has demonstrated that schools strong on the elements of the Framework are more likely to produce gains in attendance and student achievement. This research includes a new preliminary New York City analysis over the 2014-15 and 2015-16 school years that shows that schools performing well on most Framework elements are eight times more likely to substantially improve student achievement.
